Launching a business should not be guided by “gut feelings”. A plethora of young startups have failed early for lack of information. To prevent this from happening to you, we, as neutral advisers, assess your concept objectively and accompany you right from the beginning to the practical implementation of your project.

As a startup, you come up with an idea which has sprung from your individual baseline inventory and confront the questions such as:

- Does my business idea have profit potential?
- How do I create a business plan; does my business plan take into account all important factors, for example, convincing a bank?

- Is my plan plausible?
- Do I have enough capital; how much capital do I need; what are possible financing routes?
- Am I eligible for a support funding programme?
- What legal form should I choose for my company and what are the next steps towards starting my business?
- How do I register for tax?

With pleasure, we can help you with experienced teams, professional planning tools and our commitment to the tasks leading to a successful foundation of your business.

Just talk to us.

For whatever queries you may have, our start-up team stands ready to help you with words and deeds.
